Professional research

My background lies in computer engineering. My research while in school focused primarily on electronic designs and development, its impact in the society and technology development at large.

Information system and technology: One of project I carried on technology is the design and development of an automated water dispenser using Arduino micro-controller coded in C++. This project involves the dispensation of water from an electronic device without touching or clicking on any button.

Furthermore, I did a course with Seamfix a software company with a good track record where I learnt Frontend development. During this program I was able to develop some websites that were fully responsive.
